The Family Budget

EDITORIAL

IT HAS been said that never before have people spent so much money or saved so much. The seeming extravagance is only seeming. The intelligent use of the budget has emancipated many people from financial burdens. They do not ask their income where it went, they tell it where to go. By first setting aside enough for the necessities—food, clothing, shelter, operating, etc., and a definite sum for the security of savings and insurance, they enjoy their recreations, indulge their whims and contribute to their charities without a shadow of worry.

Big busines today operates on a budget system. The United States Government has found that its departments functon better and at the same time more efficiently under a budget plan. The same methods that are beng used by large corporations and our government can also be applied to the expenditure of the family income. Thousands of families who have adopted this system would not be willing to go back to the old haphazard way... But there are still too many folks trying to stretch their incomes, and it can't be done. Unfortunately we can't spend the same money twice or three time—if we could, there would be no need for a budget. We can't "have our cake and eat it too."

A family budget is an estimate of the family income and expenditure for a given ensuing period, a week, a month or a year, with proposals for maintaining a proper balance between the various types of expenditure. It simply puts the reverse English on expenditures. Instead of spending first and wondering.. where the family income went, you list what you are going to spend and how you are going to spend it in advance, and then abide by your plan.

....The ideal family budget is one that is worked out by the particular family that is to use it. We all differ somewhat in our ideas of needs and luxuries. A standardized budget does not allow for personal tastes.

We urge every reader to draw up a family budget—make the family income go round. Let the whole family help in making up the budget, and keep track of all expenditures in every division Make it a sort of family game, and you will find it the most successful and prosperous "game" you ever played.

The ant worked without play — grasshopper played without work. One sacrificed the comforts of life in a miserly way, and the other came to grief because he did not save and plan for the winter that was sure to come... They should both have been on a budget. We are told to go to the ant, learn of his ways, and be wise. Many have done so, and, even wiser than the ant, they have also taken a lesson from the grasshopper (who after all did have a wonderful time —while it lasted.) There is a sense of play in most of us which should find a normal outlet, and not be suppressed by money worries. The budget takes into consideration our need for.. recreation,.. and.. anyone.. who faithfully adheres to the budget that is best suited to his needs will have the greatest fredom to really enjoy life.

....In order to formulate your family budget, turn to page three of this paper where you will find many helpful ideas on family budgeting.

Do not fail to observe the names of the business and professional men appended to the bottom of this page. It is through their loyalty to your town and their town, that so good a program has been made possible to appear this week in the Times-Gazette.

COUNTY BILL FAILS TO GET SIGNATURE

Parkman Bill Given Pocket Veto By Governor

The San Mateo county govern- ment bill, which was introduced to the legislature by Assemblyman Hary Parkman for this county, went into the discard with some 250 other bills on Wednesday evening, when by failure to sign the measure, the governor killed it by a pocket veto.

The bill, when its provisions were announced, caused quite a stir among the county officers. The salaries of a number of the county employees were raised to bring all officials to an equality, and no fees were to be collected by the officials themselves, this money to be turned into the county treasury; this provision did away with the registration fees collected at present by the county clerk.

The feature of the bill which attracted the greatest attention was that which would have prohibited a county official from accepting a position at the same time with any other civil incorporation. This would have prohibited County Engineer Kneese from holding the position of city engineer, which he now holds in many of the municipalites of the county.

City Government Now Liable To Be Sued For Wrecks

It is now possible to sue the city government for the negligence of its employees when an automobile accident happens The signing of Assembly Bill 595 by Governor Young makes this possible. This fact was called to the attention of the city council by Charles G. Lambert.

In a letter to the council Lambert called attention to the fact that it now becomes incumbent upon the council to arrange a fund to take care of contingencies which may arise as a result of this bill.

Prior to the signing by Governor Young of this bill, it was held that city, county and state governments could not be sued since they represented the people, and it would not be possible for the people to sue themselves.

Consolidation Committee May Add to Number

San Mateo county was represented at a meeting of the San Francisco-San Mateo County Consolidation Committee, which met in San Mateo Tuesday by E. B. Hinman and David Cosgrave of Redwood City, Major C. N. Kirkbride of San Mateo and J. H. Sullivan of Menlo Park. The meeting was presided over by Colbert Coldwell as chairman.

This meeting was given over to a general review of what the committee has accomplished in its study and a discussion of what steps should be taken now that, as formally announced by Colonel Allen G Wright, Assembly Bill 630 (the San Francisco-San Mateo Consolidation Act of 1929), has been signed by Governor C. C. Young.

Chairman Coldwell, when his attention was called to certain criticism that has appeared on the subject of the Consolidation, reiterated the committee's attitude of being a fact-finding body whose purpose is not to issue propaganda but to evolve a proper and acceptable Consolidation plan which might be presented to the people of both counties for their vote.

The committee also discussed the matter of adding to its personnel at the proper time, not only so that additional phases of Consolidation may be studied, but so that all elements of both communities may be properly represented in the prosecution of the committee's work.

Chairman Coldwell stated that the Finance Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, in its budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1st next, has under consideration a request that it finance the minor expenses of the Consolidation Committee for the next year, in order that a bureau might be organized on a full-time basis with such technical and legal assistance as may be required.

It was moved by Major C N. Kirk- Kirkbride, seconded by J. D. Bromfield, and carried unanimously, that the committee, pending a decision by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce Finance Committee, adjourn to meet again at the call of the chair about August 1, 1929, at which time plans for future procedure will be presented and the committee will decide on the manner in which it should add to its personnel.

Since enactment of the California crippled children's act two years ago, 102 children have been granted certificates for expert medical and hospital care at state and county expense the State Board of Health recently announced. Many of the children were victims of the infantile paralysis epidemic of a year ago, but only two lives were lost among the children that secured state aid. Forty-three crippled youngsters have been released from hospitals, conditionally, the board reported; eight have been discharged as cured, twenty-nine are still receiving hospital care and several others are convalescing in homes.

London Gets Photoradiogram From San Francisco

The transmission of the first commercial photoradiogram from San Francisco to London, utilizing the new transcontinental radio circuit which Mayor Walker of New York opened, was announced by R. C. A. Communications, Inc. The picture, shown above, was posed and developed in the Hollywood studios of Radio Pictures, the motion picture producing organization of R-K-O, rushed by airplane to San Francisco, and there filed for transmission to London, via New York. This feat marked the first time that a photograph has traversed a distance of approximately 6,000 miles to its destination, in commercial radio transmission. The photograph shows Henry Didot, French consul at Los Angeles, and Henry Bancroft-Livingston, English vice consul of the same city, with Bebe Daniels and Betty Compson grouped around a representation of the northern hemisphere topped by a radio tower.

Lift Head Slowly After Driving

OFTENTIMES one is advised to keep the head down with the eye glued to the spot after the ball has been dispatched on its way. Usually this comes from an amateur, well meaning no doubt, but it is very bad advice. If one attempts to keep the head down during the follow through he will check the pivot, a most important thing to the completion of the shot.

The right shoulder cannot possibly find a way to do its part of the work as long as the head remains stationary and blocks it off. This is all right on a short shot where no distance is required, but it is not so good when one strives for a long wooden shot or a long iron. This is a very good point to remember. Turn gradually—not too soon, nor too late.

Correct and Most Effective Style of Putting

THE proper putting stance is of course the one which brings the best results no matter how awkward it may be. We all strive for perfection and naturally seek the easiest way of doing a thing.

Hagen, Jones, the late W. J. Travis, Jerome Travers, are examples of putting perfection. The easiest way to get the ball in the hole is to stand in a position in which no putt will be slighted. We should strive hard to make every putt, no matter how short. Long putts take care of themselves, as they are more or less of accident.

Take command of the club with the right hand and make sure that the weight of the body is on the left foot. Stroke the ball. Do not jab at it. Keep the club going through in a straight line and your putting will be improved 50 per cent.

A Large Ball Helps the Average Player

NOW there is talk of changing the golf ball. Those who play the best golf find the present small ball a help to them. Long hitters would not want a larger or lighter ball, despite the fact that it stands up on the grass better and does not seek every little crevice in its path.

The duffer, or Mr. Average Player, will find that the large ball will help his game at least 25 per cent. There is more surface to hit and the golfer thereby gains more confidence.

INFERTILE EGGS BEST PRESER

Only Fresh, Clean and S Should Be Used.

Only those eggs that are clean and sound of shell should be preserved or "put down" for use in winter. One spoiled egg will, in many cases, cause the entire lot to spoil.

"To be absolutely sure that eggs are fresh and the shells clean they should be candled," says Mr. Oliver, extension poultry man of North Carolina State college. An old shoe box may be used for this purpose by cutting holes in it to fit the egg and fitting it over a light bulb.

"This test will show up any thin or cracked shells and will also show if germination has started, which is a safety-first precaution and only takes only a few minutes time. It should be practiced by every housewife before putting down any eggs."

For best results infertile eggs should be used but fertile eggs may be used with good results if they are put down each day. If this is done the danger of germination is eliminated. Never wash the eggs before preserving as this removes the natural protective coating on the shell.

In preparing the solution, Mr. Oliver advises one quart of water to nine quarts of pure water. The water should be boiled and cooled before mixing with the water glass.

For containers, a clean stone jar is the best but tin or wood vessels may be used. A six-gallon jar will hold about fifteen dozen eggs.

Mr. Oliver states that the eggs in the top of the container should be covered by at least one and one-half inches of the solution. It is not necessary to fill the jar at one time as fresh eggs can be added each day. Using care, however, that the eggs in the top are always covered with the solution.

The containers should be covered to prevent evaporation and should be stored in a cool place until needed.

Give Good Ventilation During Summer

Plenty of ventilation should be provided for brooder houses during hot summer months, advises Mr. Vandervort, extension poultryman of the Pennsylvania State college. Ventilators at the rear of the brooder house and windows at the front and on the sides should be kept open to allow free circulation of air, Mr. Vandervort says. Results of poultry demonstrations among college flocks show that pullets reared in hot, stuffy houses are likely to be stunted and unprofitable.

Frequent cleaning of the houses in the summer is necessary also to prevent flies from breeding and to keep the air in the building pure. Fine wire netting placed around the pens will keep the pullets from the droppings, one means of helping to prevent worm infestation.

The Family Budget

This outline divides the family budget expenditures and savings into twelve general heads. With the great variation of home and living conditions, no attempt has been made to establish either amounts or percentages for these various divisions. Each of these twelve divisions, however, is a necessary part of the well-balanced expenditure of the family income. A careful check-up of living expenses with this outline should enable any family to develop a family budget to fit their needs.

Keeping a budget will repay all the time and attention given to it. You will find it not only interesting but profitable. When kept over a period of months it provides an excellent basis for future planning.

1. FOOD—Food should consist of a balanced diet suited to the needs of the various members of the family and to the seasons of year. It will include: Meat and fish, dairy products groceries, vegetables, bread, fruit, business man's lunches, etc.

2. SHELTER—A home should be roomy, light, airy, sanitary, comfortable and attractive; with running water, toilet and bath, lighting and heating, and refrigeration. The home should be at least 15 feet from neighboring houses. The yard should have walks, a grass plot, shrubs and flowers; and a garage for the family car. The home whether owned or rented bears such expenses as: Home Building payments, Rent, Taxes, etc.

3. OPERATING—Under this heading should come such expenditures as: Fuel, ice, laundry, telephone, water, cleaning. It should also include service equipment and supplies, decorating, paper hanging, plumbing, repair and sundry other expenditures for maintenance and upkeep.

4. CLOTHING—Wearing apparel for all members of the family should be suitable in style and comfort for the four seasons of the year. Clothes and shoes should be systematically purchased for work, dress and sport.

5. FURNISHINGS—The home furnishings should be acquired for a four-fold purpose—comfort, service, health and attractiveness. Under this heading come all house furnishings items such as rugs, carpets, furniture, curtains, drapes, beds, stoves, cooking utensils, etc.

6. SAVINGS AND INVESTMENT—Every family should save. Saving represents security against the needs of the future. Under this head are such items as bank savings and accounts, securities, real estate, building and loan, etc.

7. RECREATION—Such as lodge and club dues, moving pictures, theatre, sports and sporting equipment, amusements, vacations, travel, music, radio, musical instruments, children's toys, etc.

8. EDUCATION AND ADVANCEMENT.—Including schooling for children; newspapers, magazines and books, lectures, special vocational training such as business college, night school, correspondence courses, musical training, etc.

9. HEALTH—Including such items as must be expended for such services as medical attendance, dental services, hospital care, drug sundries, etc.

10. INSURANCE—Such as life, sickness, accident, fire, burglary and automobile insurance, etc.

11. PERSONAL EXPENSES—Incidental items of personal expense, such as jewelry, gifts, cosmetics, barber, tobacco, candy, confectionery, flowers, etc.

12. CHURCH AND BENEVOLENCES—Including church subscriptions and collections, charity, such as Red Cross, etc.

A Crime Deterrent

THE establishment of a Federal court in each judicial district, which would devote itself exclusively to disposition of criminal cases, has been recommended to the Department of Justice by a United State attorney whose identity has not been disclosed. It was the opinion of this district attorney that in most cases such a criminal court would be required to sit all the time. One of the reasons given for the suggestion was that it would relieve the congestion which now interferes with the trial of both civil and criminal cases, and also, that with such a court in session law violators, especially those violating the prohibition law, would be less likely to engage in such violation for a commercial purpose.

It was intimated that under present conditions these prominent violators of the law are able, between the time of indictment and the time they ultimately reach the penitentiary, to make money enough to induce them to take the chances. Such a criminal court sitting practically all of the time, it is suggested would mean prompt prosecution which it is remarked, is perhaps after all the best deterrent to law violators.

It is a matter of common knowledge that our courts are over-burdened and cases are consequently long delayed before they come to trial. The law violator knows that even if he is caught, his trial will be long delayed and with the many legal technicalities that can be taken advantage of the chances of conviction are relatively small. This may be pointed out as one of the primary causes for the large number of crimes that are committed in this country, not only in regard to the prohibition law but in every part of the criminal field.

On the other hand, there is no doubt but that if one contemplating the commission of a crime knew that, if detected, he was in great danger of quick trial and conviction, he would hesitate much longer before acting. At the present time the chance of gain outweighs the chance of being punished. If the scales were reversed it would, no doubt, be a beneficial factor in decreasing the percentage of crime.

A Half-Billion Dollar Waste

President Hoover, when he was Secretary of Commerce, stated that the smoke nuisance costs every citizen from $8 to $20 a year.

Herbert M. Wilson, former chief engineer of the U. S. Geological Survey, estimates the Nation's annual smoke bill as totaling $500,000,000. This tremendous sum is paid in property damage, medical bills, destruction to merchandse, injury to plant life and through many other ravages of smoke.

The solution, according to experts, is to replace solid fuel burning furnaces, both in home and in industry, with automatic oil or gas heating systems. This has been done, with complete success, in many notable instances.

Oil and gas, as well as being smokeless, have established new standards of economy, efficiency and service. They are playing a steadily increasing part in domestic and business life.

Telephone Enterprise Encourages Peace

THE great countries of the world are being brought closer together by a bond of telephone comumnication.

When a citizen in New York or San Francisco can, by raising a receiver, talk to a citizen of London or Berlin, it means that American telephone enterprise has provided a tremendous step forward in perfecting our understanding of other people and improving the business, social and governmental relations we have with them.

It is difficult to promote war and ignorance and national hatreds when a thin strip of wire will carry our voices around the world in a split second.

The National Origins Clause

IN the face of a series of defeats during this session of Congress, opponents of the National Origins Clause of the Immigration Act of 1924, which is to become effective July 1 in accordance with a proclamation by President Hoover, have continued with unabated force their efforts to get Congress to take action which would either defeat or postpone the effective date of this method of apportioning the immigration quotas to the foreign countries.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the foremost defenders of the National Origins Clause, in a recent speech before the Senate set forth facts showing the impartiality and accuracy of the quotas under this method and gave many reasons why it should not be further postponed.

"I am attracted," he said, "by the fact that the national-origins basis will reduce the aggregate of immigration by about 11,000 persons below the number admitted on the 1890 census basis. It pleases me and others who think as I do that the annual inflow is throttled down just that much more; that under the national origins scheme we will get only 153,000 as a maximum, instead of 164,000 under the 1890 census basis. But much more important than that seems to me to be the element of impartiality, which will serve as an armor for the protection of that law through the decades to come, when it is bound to be challenged as the pressure for admission to the United States increases; and I think it is bound to increase from year to year."

In regard to the accuracy of the quotas under the National Origins Clause, Senator Reed stated that "the quota board, made up of the best scientists we have in the Bureau of the Census, the Department of Commerce, and the State Department have worked steadily for five years, and that was the real reason for the postponements of 1927 and 1928. It was only this year when the chairman of the quota board, the Assistant Director of the Census, Doctor Hill, came before us and said, 'Our work is finished. No further extension will enable us to improve on the work. We have gone through all the sources of information, and we are ready now to say that our figures are final." When he said that, the committee said, 'Then postponements shall stop.'

'That is why the law has not been changed, by approval of the committee, and that is why the President has made his proclamation of the national-origins quotas, and that is why they will go into effect on the first day of next month."

The Worlds Greatest Opportunity

TWO men, known and trusted by earth's leading nations, are to meet in friendly fashion, without any diplomatic flummery or rubbish rodmontade, and discuss definite plans for real and present disarmament.

Small hope was there when Militarists and Navalists foregathered at Geneva, ostensibly for that purpose, that any real advance would be made in such a cause. Admirals and Generals could hardly be expected to commit professional harikari; nor could Foreign Offices and Departments of State dare to outstep their dyed-in-the-wool traditional policies.

But now we learn that Britain's foremost man, Premier Ramsay MacDonald, is coming to Washington to meet the chosen man of America, President Herbert C. Hoover, and, if possible, arrange for an actual experiment in real disarmament; a permanent and progressive dcrease in the world's Naval and Military establishments. Not only Russia and the Scandinavian countries have expressed their desire for such a move, but the plan has been more than once tried and proved its entire possibility, its lasting success.

One might almost call it the "Monroe Doctrine;" for it was on Monroe's birthday, April 28th, 1818 that he announced to the American nation the signing of the Rush-Bagot Arrangement, by which Richard Rush, for the U. S. A. and Sir Chas. Bagot, for Great Britain, agreed, that instead of preparing for the next war, as Britain was proposing to do, by putting a more powerful navy on the Great Lakes, which are part of our Northern Frontier, neither party should in future have a single warship on those lakes; and, by a further tacit understanding, no additional forts or garrisons on the 3000-mile boundary line running westward from those lakes.

Every one knows the success that has attended this total disarmament. No shot fired or sword drawn in 110 years!

A more modern success has been scored by Sweden and Norway, who followed the same course in 1905. The privilege now presents itself to President Hoover and Premier MacDonald to pursue itself not only possible but mutually profitable on the Great Lakes.

If the Kellogg Peace Pact means what it says let our faith in it be proved by our works!

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Unique Organization Studies the Ground

Land Institute Solves Taxation Problems; Tells How to Lay Out Cities and Finance Home Ownership

NOTE: This is one of a series of articles prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Efficiency experts, armed with statistics, superior knowledge, and modern methods, long ago descended on business in every field and made it more prosperous, points out the National Association of Real Estate Boards in its article for property owners.

And now the land economist, the efficiency expert for real estate, also armed with statistics, superior knowledge and modern methods, has descended on the soil and will make it more prosperous for farmer and city dweller alike, says the Association.

Few people know of the existence of the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, housed in Northwestern University, Chicago, which has a too academic name for its practical purposes. For although this unique organization of scholars is engaged in research, the results of their studies are bound in volumes that gather dust in the university library, but are, and will continue to be, applied to the flesh and blood problems of the average man with a piece of land on his hands.

How to make the land more efficient by improving the way in which it is taxed, the way in which it is financed, the way in which it is subdivided, used, bought, sold, and served with heat and light, occupies the attention of some thirty-five experts who were brought together for this purpose by one of the world's foremost economists, Dr. Richard T. Ely.

Dr. Ely, at whose feet have sat some of the country's most prominent educators, was for many years professor of political economy at John Hopkins. There writing on taxation, it was natural that he also should become interested in the allied problems of housing, farming, and the use of the land. Eight years ago he set up the Institute at the University of Wisconsin. In 1925 its work had so developed that it was decided a metropolitan area would afford its workers better opportunities for research and the Institute moved to Northwestern.

Work on Timely Subjects

Programs set up by Dr. Ely, with an eye to attacking the problems of the moment, are carried on simultaneously by his highly trained staff of practical professors and star graduates. In order to show how the Institute's selection of subjects for research works out, take, for example, the tax situation in Chicago. Dr. Ely, an authority on taxation matters, and several of his men, had been gathering material in this field for many years. The Institute machinery was oiled and ready to go when thousands of tax payers in Chicago began protesting against the methods of property assessments used in this area. Charging inequalities and injustices, these people forced the formation of a Commission to study the situation; and the Commission immediately turned to the Land Institute as the logical agency to undertake the tremendous task of getting at the facts.

The Institute set to work and some months later Chicago had a mass of data concerning real estate valuations such as probably no other large city in the country has ever had. The Institute found that some properties in the Chicago area had been assessed at slightly less than five per cent of their sales values, others at more than one hundred per cent, while the average was thirty per cent. Naturally this information was of great interest to the property-owning Chicago public.

This is an example of how the Institute work is of importance to property owners or prospective property owners throughout the country, for it does not confine its activities to Chicago by any means.

People had been dissatisfied with the tax situation in Chicago for some time. The information secured by the impartial Land Institute convinced the legislature that the situation was bad and in June 1928 it passed a bill that gave the State Tax Commission authority to make a complete re-assessment of all real estate in Chicago and Cook county. And when this gigantic task has been finished, thousands of tax payers who will find new and fairer assessments in their mail boxes can thank the Land Institute.

How to Organize Subdivisions

But this is only one phase of the Institute's work that is of interest to the public. One of the parts of its subdivision study, just finished, may result in making more attractive realty investments available to the public. It may also result in the building of finer cities. For this unique undertaking has analyzed the sources of credit for subdivision financing and set forth the most economical sources for use under certain conditions. To show the importance of research in this field of financing, the Institute points out that it sometimes costs more to get money for financing subdivision development than to buy the land. Naturally if, and when, financing costs are high, the burden is passed on to the home buyer or builder.

The financing study also sets forth the amount of land that should be set aside under certain conditions for business sections in laying out a subdivision; and the treatise points out that sometimes too much land is developed as business property. The prospective comumnity cannot support it, whereas it might have been sold for residential use. The Subdivision Study also analyzes the proportion of land that should be landscaped or set aside for park and recreational use in communities of this sort.

This study takes up the important matter of how fast a subdivision should grow to return the maximum investment to its promoters and to its ultimate buyers. It also goes into the subjects of subdivision control and the proper size of real estate lots.

This is invaluable material for the real estate profession, for city planners, and financial agencies, because it comprises the impartial findings of an organization that can speak with authority, and such data can be used as a guide in improving future realty devolopments.

A great part of the Institute research work is in the heretofore neglected public utility field. No one paid any attention to increasing the efficiency of public utility administration until the Institute came along; yet, as Dr. Ely points out, public utilities represent half the cost of developing a subdivision, and any steps that might be taken to raise their standards or lower their cost or expense would benefit the buyers of subdivisions.

Public And Private Ownership

Several of the Institute's talented staff are occupied with studies that will ultimately set forth the advantages of both public and private ownership of utilities, a question in which even the federal government has shown great interest. Naturally the Institute will draw no conclusions here or in any of its work. It can only set forth the facts uncovered by painstaking research and let the interested parties act or not on its findings as they will.

Another interesting activity going on at present in the Institute workshop is a study of the cost of home ownership and the tendency of people to occupy rented quarters. Dr. Ely wants to know whether people rent because they want to or because they have to. Research may show that renting is a state of mind or the result of economic conditions that have made home ownership too costly in many places. The City Housing Corporation of New York City (a limited dividend company) has so far engaged in two projects for the housing of low-salaried people. Dr. Ely has been one of the City Housing Corporation directors since its beginning; and because of his connection the Institute is able to follow closely the workings of the Corporation, considering the organization as its housing laboratory. The project completed is called Sunnyside; Radburn is the name of the current project which contemplates the building of an entire town especially planned for the motor-age. It is interesting to note that the Sunnyside project is a going concern, that is is paying satisfactory dividends to its promoters while the babies of New York street car conductors roll on the grass fifteen minutes away from the heart of the city.

The Land Institute should change its name. It sounds as though its staff members spent their time browsing in dim libraries, while as a matter of fact they roam the country making investigations that may change the appearance of our cities and may make home ownership possible for people who continue to rent.

Electric water heating is now economical

The cut in rates of a year ago, means that an electric water heater, when used with an electric range, heats water for only one-third to one-half of a cent per gallon. So little to pay for hot water. And a CLEAN, COOL, all-electric kitchen.

No wonder that women using electricity for cooking are turning to electricity for heating water.

if BOOKS ARE YOUR HOBBY

By ELSIE FORD

There is happily a form of friendship beyond the power of mortal man to deny or withhold. The friendship emanating from books no force can annul. That books meet the human need in always maintaining the attitude of equilibrium is a strong point in their favor. They are companions who never grow old in adversity, tire in sickness, weary with the frailities. Neither do they complain of neglect, nor scorn as our friends fail. Books are true friends, mentors and inspirers.

Arthur Somers Roche, one of the favorite authors of the day has just written a new book, "The Woman Hunter," published by the Century Co. This spells good news to thousands of readers who look forward eagerly from one story of his to another. Without question this is one of his finest pieces, a story of thrills from start to finish. It is a rapid-fire tale of New York's underworld and its depredatons on the sophisticated world of wealth and fashion. Pretty little Vonny Candace, with her "self-made" father's thirty million hanging around her neck lake a magnet, becomes the unsuspecting center of a sinister whirlpool of intrigue, suspicion, gun-play and murder in which the actors are calculating, professional rackateers of the underworld, hardboiled gunmen and private detectives, and the gay, loose-living fragrants of society who supply half the excitement and nearly all the gossip of the smart circles in which they move. "The Woman Hunters" has all the elements that go for a good, fascinating story of modern life in certain circles. The kind of a book that you find yourself reading the first time — and then again and again.

The innocent reader who knows little or nothing of the mechanic arts of book making has perhaps noted that some books are unendurable, heavy to hold, while others are relatively light, while some others are surprisingly buoyant. The secret of it is that the heavy book is made of a paper coated with a talcose mineral enamel It is said that a single soap stone quarry has furnished tons upon tons of its product for thus weighting or coating papers. Oh, for the linen age! Yet, if the "literary deluge" must continue perhaps it is well that some books are too heavy to hold and too fiberless to endure.

A book that is sure to make an appeal to the young folks is "Mexico and Central America," one of the "Travels in Many Lands" series by Harry A. Franck and published by F. A. Owen. This is a book in which throughout. Mr. Franck tells of the narrative interest is maintained hardships, adventures, amusing episodes which he encountered in Mexico and Central America and tells too of the lives of these people among whom he visited. Among the chapter heads which give an excellent idea of the material in the book are, "Traveling as the Mexicans Do;" "Something Of Mexican History;" "My Journey to the Gulf Coast;" "In the Depths of Honduras." Unusual accuracy is claimed for the information in these books. They may be given to children with the assurance that every chapter is based on immediate experience of the author in the countries described. Books that nourish are those which elevate the morals and stimulate the brain. Such books are to be found in all departments of phlosophy, theology, poetry, fiction and history.

High roving adventure in modern Italy, involving veiled beauties, revolutionary desperadoes and mysterious Marchesas is the theme of "Summer Lightning" by George F. Hummel and published by Horace Liveright. The story tells of the adventures of one bewildered newspaperman, Harris, who finds himself in Italy unexpectedly the chief actor in the big story which his paper sent him to wire. From the moment Harris, not too experienced in the ways and wiles of women, meets a veiled Albanan beauty in a Naples cabaret, and follows her through strange inky alleways to her exotic abode, the reader is carried through a maze of political intrigue, mysterious murder, and romantic adventure, all culminating when the sentence of death is passed on the reckless heroine. The scene shifts from Naples to Rome, Albania and back to Rome. This is a remarkably fine novel and a theme of the most entrancing.

For the little tots the book "What To Do the Whole Year Trough," by Reba Mahan Stevens and published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard will prove a superlative fare For here is a book telling the adventures of two little girls and how they were amused from January to December in twelve delightful stories. The book grew out of the author's experiences a mother who planned ways in which to hold her little daughter's attention on rainy Saturdays. All the material called for can easily be found in the average house, and the directions are clear and so given that they may be readily understood. The story form is used to attract and arouse the interest of the reader to the point of wanting to do with her own two hands what the two little girls did There is something in each story that may be worked out to bring pleasure to others, egg-dolls, charm strings, bird-houses, flower tiles and scrapbooks are among the delightful activities described.

New SUPERIOR Whippet

FOURS AND SIXES

WHEN you first see the new Superior Whippet, you at once appreciate that it is distinguished by beauty and artistry never before associated with inexpensive cars—that it definitely establishes an ultra-modern style trend for light cars.

In modish design, the new Superior Whippet is as far ahead of its competition as the first Whippet was ahead in engineering advantages, and introduces costly car style practice to the light car field just as its predecessor introduced costly car engineering practice.

The new Superior Whippet has longer bodies, higher radiator and hood, low, graceful lines, sweeping full crown fenders, rich, harmonious colors—all contributing to the trim, smart appearance that bears testimony to creative genius and superlative mastery of modern design.

Club Proposes Use by City of Fire House

The use of the upper part of the fire house as a place for the safe keping of the city records pertaining to the offices of city engineer and city attorney was advocated in a letter presented to the city council Monday evening by E. E. Hartsough for the Redwood City Promotion Association.

The letter stated that public interest had been aroused in the present conditions through the recent campaign for a new city hall, and that since the bond issue for this purpose was defeated at the recent election, that the council should provide a safe place for the records until such a time as a new city hall became possible.

WOODSIDE

Miss Edith Patrick and Miss Dorothy Clennan were visitors at Woodside on Sunday. Ten years ago these young ladies were the teachers at the Woodside School and while here made many friends among the members of the community and they were welcomed with hearty greeting. Miss Patrick has for some years been teaching in the Hawaiian Islands and Miss Clennan is a teacher of art in Berkeley.

It is not often that one sees Charles T Bradley in Woodside at this time of year. Usually by the middle of May he hies himself to his resort on Lake Tahoe and is not seen again in these parts until summer is over. This year he began to build a new boat for the Lake and the job has taken him longer than he expected. That's why he is still here However, the boat is nearly ready for the water and the fish in Lake Tahoe have only a few days of safety allotted to them.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Hooper returned to San Francisco from New York last week. They have now gone on a visit to Santa Barbara and on their return will open their home in Woodside for the summer.

Mrs. Prentis Cobb Hale entertained the Board of Directors of the Western Women's Club at her home here on Wednesday Luncheon was served in the garden.

Mr and Mrs. Mervyn MacArthur and family and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gish and son are spending the week in Yosemite Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Blackington, son and daughter, will leave the last of this week for a vacation trip into Oregon. This is their old home, both Mr. and Mrs. Blackington being graduates of Oregon Agricultural College.

Woodside had one inch of rain during the storm of Saturday and Sunday. The hay crop will suffer severely but the danger of fire will be materially lessened for some weeks to come

Several of the Woodside Girl Scouts are planning to attend the Scout camp at Big Basin this summer.

Word has been received from Mrs. Louis Werder from The Hague. If her health permits she will travel in Germany and Switzerland this summer.

Berthold Werder has been employed by the Frank Tanning Company as night engineer. Since installing arc lights at the plant a small engine must be run all night, necessitating another engineer.

Charles Cook, who has been residing at the Capitol Hotel for the winter, has moved his family to the Leon Bean house Mr. Cook is an employee of the custom house and is the son of a former editor of the Times-Gazette.

The Foresters of America baseball team will play a team from Court Oakland tomorrow on the local diamond. The teams met two weeks ago in Oakland and the local boys won by a score of 9 to 8. The following is the line-up of Court Madrone's agregation: catcher, Roy Curran; ptcher, A. Michael; short, J. Allain; 1st, E. Botto; 2nd, E. Demartini; 3rd, F. Becker; left field, A. Salads Are Ideal For Hot Weather

Fashion still favors the "salad figure." Fortunately, there are a host of slenderizing salads. And a little ingenuity can give an almost endless and appetizing variety to this portion of one's diet. Here, for instance, is a proved recipe for frozen tomato salad, furnished by Dr. Martha Manning, the well known health authority and home refrigeration expert:

"Take two cups of cooked tomato, two cloves, one slice of onion, one-half teaspoon sugar, one-eighth teaspoon of salt, a few grains of cayenne, one level teaspoon granulated gelatin and one-quarter cup of cold water.

"Add cloves, onion, sugar, salt and cayenne to the tomato and simmer ten minutes. Strain through a fine sieve and add gelatin soaked in cold water for five minutes. Stir until gelatine is dissolved, then cool.

"Fill half-pound baking powder cans with the mixture, cover tops with waxed paper and put on covers. Pack in equal parts ice and sale for three hours. Unmold, cut into inch slices and serve with mayonnaise.

"To make boiled salad dressing," Dr. Manning continues, "use three eggs, one teaspoon salt, the same amount of dry mustard, four tablespoons sugar and the same amount of flour, one-half cup water and the same quantities of vinegar and sour cream or milk.

"Beat the eggs and add the salt, paprika, mustard, sugar and flour. Blend thoroughly and add the water and vinegar. Cook in a double boiler until very thick and creamy. Stir frequently to prevent lumping. Add sour cream and cook for one minute. Remove from fire, beat for two minutes and pour into a jar, which has been rinsed in cold water. Cool, cover and store in the icebox."

Too Hot To Eat?

HOW often during the hot summer months you sit down to eat and get up without taking a bite. You say, "It's too hot to eat."

When you have this feeling, you should eat summer candy. Candy is the most appetizing of the carbohydrates,—and carbohydrates are essential to a strong body and a healthy system. These carbohydrates stored up in your tissues give your system the necessary fuel for energy and activity, thus preventing your tissues from burning up. This last is the real reason for summer irritability and lack of appetitie.

You can get your candy, made especially for summer weather, at your Rexall Store at unusually low prices. Eat our summer candy for summer energy.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

True Love

The shell moon hung in a scarf of cloud,
And the ocean stole its light.
Mary and I talked (scarce aloud)
By the breakers, long and white;
Our hearts waltzed to the rhyme of Youth
And, with hand clasped in hand,
We told each other love's high truth
Where sea spray fell on sand.

Youth's magic days! Soft evenings fell
And diamond dawns burst on the dew!
Life rang as true as a mission bell—
We could not dream of love more true.
Then Youth folded its gossamer tent
Of hopes and dreams—and, side by side,
We smiled at the foolish dreams that went
And shared new hopes as old ones died.

We have watched together by baby's bed,
We have built a home and seen it sold;
We have often wondered where daily bread
Would come from. Yes, and we're growing old;
Still our happiness grows and grows.
Steadfast always it will endure;
Thorns belong to the perfect rose,
Tested love is the love secure.

Demonstration School Will Be Held at Portola

The rural school department of San Mateo county is to be augmented this fall by the establishment of a demonstration school Pansy Jewett Abbott, County Superintendent of Schools, co-operating with the trustees of the Portola School District and the San Jose State Teachers' College has organized the model school. Situated on a paved highway in the southern portion of the county near Stanford University, with two selected teachers, the students from teacher training institutions as well as experienced teachers will find visiting days there profitable. The plan is to demonstrate a typical rural situation, conducted in accordance with conservative new educational thought.

The curriculum will be supervised by Eleanor Freman, General rural supervisor; Howard Trueblood, art supervsor; Lottie Works, musical supervisor. Miss Abbott will also provide a cadet teacher from the San Jose State Teachers' College

The trustees of the Portola School District are: John Duzanica, Clerk; Gustave P. Seebohm, D. W. Macdonough.

State To Ask $10,000,000 For San Francisco

SACRAMENTO, June 20—(CNB)—Willing to spend millions for development but not one cent for tribute, agricultural California today was invited to go to the polls next year and approve a $10,000,000 bond issue for improvements in the next decade on its own harbor — the state-owned and controlled San Francisco shipping center.

Jealously guarded state possession, as repeated refusal of the legislature to approve surrender of control to municipal authorities would indicate, the harbor has in 60 years paid its own way by meeting principal and interest on revenue bonds from receipts, Governor Young pointed out as he approved the measure which must, however, have the people's ratification. The last bond issue for an identical amount was voted in 1914 when San Mateo county was one of the 55 out of 58 which expressed aproval.

"The state harbor board in the past two years has been able to show a marked increase in operating costs," declared the Governor. "This successful operation of the harbor guarantees that its earnings will more than retire all of its bonds."

Wild Flowers Will Be Exhibited At Teachers' Meet

An exhibit of the wild flowers of San Mateo county has ben requested by the San Jose State Teachers' College to be on display for the summer session. The pupils of the rural schools have made an attractive port folio of "spatter work" which emphasizes the beauty of the fragile wild flowers of every community. The same exhibit will be shown in Redwood City when the Annual Teachers' Institute will be held in Sequoia High School.

NOTED LEADER WILL CONDUCT AT SYMPHONY

Molinari Will Lead At Woodland Theatre

At three o'clock next Sunday afternoon Bernardno Molinari, foremost exponent of symphonic music in Italy and conductor of of the Augusteo orchestra in Rome, will lift his baton to direct the personnel of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, thus inaugurating the fourth season of open-air concerts presented in the Woodland Theatre at Hillsborough by the Philharmonic Society of San Mateo county.

Throughout the week the orchestra has been rehearsing under Molinari's tutelage, and a program of rare beauty is assured those who take advantage of the concert to be given in the charming outdoor setting of the peninsula theatre.

The Woodland theatre programs this season will not, as heretofore, be the same as those given in the San Francisco evening series, due to the fact that the latter series will be broadcast, thus prohobiting the inclusion of many of the more recent compositions, owing to certain broadcasting restrictions and limitations

Among the numbers which will be heard exclusively at the Woodland theatre are: "Autumn" from the Suite of the Seasons by Vivaldi and "Alle fonti del Clitunno" of Gasco, a modern Italian composer of Naples. "By the Clitunno" is a short, pastoral poem in which the composer attempts to express and describe, musically, the calmness of the land and the countryside thru which the Clitunno flows, and of the contentment which the tourist feels in contemplation of this beautiful spot. The composer did not try to illustrate the famous and well-known lyric poem of Carducci, which pictures in beautiful language the country side along this famous river, but rather portrayed in his special medium—music—his impressions of this section dear to all Italians.

The symphonic offering will be Beethoven's always popular and ever welcome Seventh, and the Strauss Tone Poem "Don Juan" will be a feature of the second half of the program which will conclude with the Prelude to Wagner's Meistersinger"

McGraw System Hard to Beat

FRED LINDSTROM probably typifies the spirit of the Giants. The slim, twenty-four-year-old third baseman—a regular in the National league for the last six seasons, has become one of the greatest hitters in the game. His fielding ability has been unquestioned from the first day he broke in as a brilliant but inexperienced seventeen-year-old. And Lindstrom has been a better third baseman with each succeeding year, says a writer in an exchange.

After you say Lindstrom is a fine hitter and a fine fielder, he is still a mighty influence on the ball team. He has a way about him—joyous, confident and game—that percolates through the rest of the ball club. He loves to win for the sake of winning. Baseball to him is first a game and then a profession.

Fred Lindstrom.

Playing ball for John McGraw is a rather grim business for most athletes. So much penalty is attached to a single slip. But Lindstrom somehow manages to keep his philosophical balance. He doesn't let McGraw faze him in the slightest. He is perhaps the only Giant who ever had the cast-iron gall to kid his hard boiled manager.

Here is one story:

The Giants jumped out of a western city last season just after winning a close final game through a brilliant play of Lindstrom's which cut off the tying run at the plate in the ninth. Fred went over behind third base for a hard smash, came up with it and, while off balance, threw home to Hogan to nail the sliding runner by an eyelash.

Lindstrom sat in the diner that night. Across the aisle sat John McGraw. Entered a newspaper man.

"That was a great play you made this afternoon, Fred," murmured the newcomer.

Freddy waved the compliment airily to one side.

"It's nothing," he said loudly, indicating his doughty manager, toiling with a steak, "it was the McGraw system, that's all."

John McGraw glared. But there might have been just a hint of a twinkle in his hard gray eyes.

Other Giant players have fallen afoul of what Lindstrom called the "McGraw system" at one time or another.

LISKA HAILED AS BEST YOUNGSTER

Submarine Hurler Favored to Win Out.

The season has been under way long enough to offer the conclusion that Ad Liska, the twenty-two-year-old submarine chukker with the Washington Americans, isn't destined to have the tag "bloomer" fastened on him. On the contrary, Liska seems well on his way to earning the distinction of being the best young pitcher to reach the majors this season.

Manager Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers baseball ever has known, boosted Liska.

"He has impressed me more than any youngster I have seen in years," he commented.

It has come to pass that no one was wrong. Or, at least, isn't yet. Liska has pitched almost perfect ball for Washington. One of his games was a two-hit affair against Cleveland. He lost that, and was credited with losses in the two other games, because the Washingtons made only one run for him in them.

Bill McGowan, veteran American league umpire, was roaring gleefully about Liska after the two-hit game in Cleveland. McGowan officiated at the game.

"That kid has one of the most puzzling deliveries I ever have seen," he said. "It is hard to get next to.

"It's a lot different from the way Carl Mays pitches. Mays sweeps very low in his swing and a batter can follow the ball easily as he seems to hesitate just a little at the bottom of the swing and then push it in there. Not like Liska. He whips the ball. He doesn't swing low and he hides that ball so nicely that a batter can't see it until it is almost up to the plate. I sweeps up and hops.

"Joe Sewell has just about the best pair of eyes in baseball. And those eyes, and the fact that he crowds the plate and is a little fellow, make him hard to pitch to. But Sewell, as well as the other players, was topping 'em. The infielders get plenty of work when Liska works.

"Liska looks like a great pitcher. His delivery has a nice hop and is a fast one. His curve isn't so bad, either. If he keeps hiding that ball the way he did against Cleveland, no club will beat him easily."

Football Officials to Signal Fans Penalties

Football officials in the East will use a signal system next fall to tell the fans in the stands what penalties are for, etc. In the gathering at Cambridge, for the Harvard demonstration game, the officials were drilled in signs by Walter Okeson, chief of the eastern arbiters of the gridiron.

When an official on the field takes the ball and paces off 5 or 15 yards next fall the spectators won't have to ask each other what it was for. They'll be told by signals. Okeson has not hit upon a definite code as yet but will devise one as simple and plain as possible.

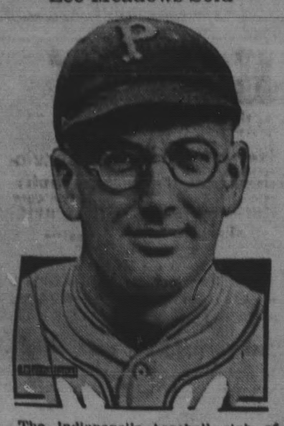

Several years ago Pete Dwyer of Syracuse voluntarily used such a set of signals and he was a very popular official. But others, the veterans, frowned upon him and would not follow suit.

Havana Course Lessens Task of Golf Visitors

The Country club of Havana has a most ingeniously arranged score card that could be copied to advantage by every "pay-as-you-play" and resort layout in the country.

The first page has the yardage and par for the links. Nothing unusual about that, but on the second and third pages are given an outline of each hole, showing where to aim and to place the drive for the short player, the medium hitter and the slugger. All hazards, whether natural or artificial, are shown clearly. For a person starting out over a strange course, such directions are a great convenience.

Lee Meadows Sold

The Indianapolis baseball club of the American association announces that it has obtained Lee Meadows, veteran pitcher, from Pittsburgh of the National league on an optional agreement. Meadows has been in the major leagues for years and was one of the first players to wear spectacles while in uniform.

John Evers Restrained From Baiting Umpires

Johnny Evers, first lieutenant to Emil Fuchs, officially is captain of the Braves, and as such is permitted to discuss the decisions with the umpires, but this is limited. When the Braves are at bat and Evers is on the third base coaching line he may talk to the umpires, but when the Braves are in the field and he is in the dugout he may not come out. Umpire McCormick restrained him when he bobbed up out of the dugout recently and when Evers took the matter up with President John A. Heydler of the league, Heydler upheld the umpire.

Doak Wins Game

Bill Doak has been credited with winning the game of April 18 against the Reds at Cincinnati instead of Harold Haid who succeeded him on the mound for the Cardinals. High went in to bat for Doak in the sixth with the score standing against the veteran pitcher and delivered a hit which helped to put the Cardinals ahead. It was held by the official scorer that Doak should be credited with the win because his team assumed the lead in the inning when he retired.

Why Mothers Age Rapidly

The Discipline of Disappointment

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is not a good thing always to succeed, and though the proverb is that "nothing succeeds like success," there are times when success makes us careless, overconfident, so sure that nothing can happen to interfere with our reaching the goal toward which we are headed, that we grow careless and indifferent, and though failure often discourages and success elates, yet there are times when it takes the shock of failure or disappointment to give the discipline upon which success is dependent, or which brings out the best in us.

Coffman has never had the discipline of disappointment. His lines have fallen in very pleasant places. He has had all his life whatever money can buy, whatever social and financial prominence can furnish. So far as the ordinary affairs of life are concerned he has never been disappointed. All he has had to do is to ask for whatever he wanted, to stretch out his hand, so to speak, and it was his. He has no understanding of people who have met misfortune, no sympathy for those who meet one reverse after another. He is selfish, a niggardly giver, a self-satisfied and rather arrogant citizen. The discipline of disappointment would have softened him, no doubt, and have made him more human in his sympathies.

Davis had always played baseball well from the time that he was old enough to get out in the back lot with the older fellows and bat a ball around until he tried out for the college nine. He had always made good at his favorite game and had been captain of the team on which he played from the time he entered grade school until he got out of high school. Disappointment had never come his way when he was trying out for baseball. He was quite sure now of a place on the college nine, and he saw no particular reason why he should exert himself with any particular energy. The berth was going to be his, and he was sure of it. The names of those who were to stay on the squad were to be posted in the afternoon and Davis wandered over to see who his teammates were to be. But his own name was not there. A little insignificant country boy by the name of Jones had the position which he had expected to fill. It was the first disappointment the boy had ever experienced and he felt it keenly.

Then he began to take stock of himself, and as he sat despondent with his head on his hand, it all came over him that he had been too cocky, too conceited, too sure of himself. He had really not made the effort that he could have made, that he was, in fact, under every obligation to make. Disappointment was really coming to him. It was a good lesson for him. The next time he got into the pitcher's box, he did not swagger quite so much; he was more modest, more deliberate, and more accurate. The discipline of disappointment had taught him more self-control.

Will Make Study of Gorillas

New York.—Four scientists sailed from New York on the Aquitania for the highlands of tropical Africa, there to kill adult gorillas, embalm them and bring them home complete for anatomical study. The new specimens will give first opportunity for detailed comparison of the gorilla with man.

Columbia university, which will finance the expedition, announced its plans. The College of Physicians and Surgeons is co-operating with the American Museum of Natural History.

Henry Craven, who has explored in Borneo, Celebes, Africa, Australia and Greenland, heads the expedition. He is associate curator of comparative anatomy at the museum.

With him are Dr. William K. Gregory, professor of vertebrate paleontology at the university and curator of comparative anatomy at the museum; Dr. J. H. McGregor, professor of zoology at the university and research associate in human anatomy at the museum, and Dr. E. T. Engle, associate professor of anatomy at Columbia.

They also will make special studies and photographs of the feet of the unshod natives who carry their equipment through the thickly grown highlands north of Lake Tanganyike. Dr. Dudley J. Morton, head of the committee in charge of the expedition, wants the data for his studies of the evolution of human foot and its disorders. The native feet are undeformed by shoes and will be compared with American feet.

The expedition will return next January.

May Compensate Law's Victim

Madison, Wis.—An effort is under way here to obtain legislative compensation for John A. Johnson, sixty-five, who served ten years in prison for a crime it now generally is believed he did not commit.

Although Johnson confessed in 1911 to the murder of seven-year-old Annie Lemberger, he repudiated his confession just before he entered the gates of Waupun prison.

In 1922 he was pardoned by Gov. E. L. Philipp, who had been convinced the man confessed because of a morbid fear of mob violence.

There are more than 3,000 Madison citizens who now are certain society "robbed" Johnson of ten working years of his life and who have signed petitions asking the legislature to compensate him, as far as possible, for that which was taken.

Johnson, an employee of the city, has aged rapidly and is in none too good health. He still works, but his earning power is small and he and the wife who trusted him during his years of imprisonment are not enjoying the comforts they might have had.

Annie Lemberger, daughter of Martin Lemberger, was put to bed by her mother about nine o'clock the night of September 5, 1911. Several days later her body was found floating in Monona bay. She had been beaten to death.

Johnson was arrested three days later and was questioned by a detective. For hours he maintained that he was innocent—until the detective struck the vulnerable spot.

The officer, failing in all other efforts to make Johnson confess, told him that a mob was outside clamoring for his life.

Johnson once had seen a man lynched at Darlington and the moment he heard that he was in danger of meeting a similar fate he became a cringing, terrified wreck. He confessed, begged protection, and when arraigned in court pleaded guilty, with the additional plea that he be hurried to prison and saved from the mob.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Johnson and two daughters, Stella and Bertha, testified that Johnson had gone to bed about nine o'clock the night of the murder and never left the house during the night, the man's plea of guilty was accepted and he was sentenced to Waupun for life.

Joan d'Arc Features Bring Movie Fame

Paris.—Only because she had the features of St. Joan, eighteen-year-old Simone Genevoix has risen from the mass of unknown French women to become one of the most popular of French moving picture actresses.

Madamoiselle Genevoix had never acted until a few weeks ago, and she was known only to her fellow townsfolk as a quiet and demure young girl who some day would make a good wife for one of the town's beaux. But French producers discovered she resembled Joan of Arc even in mannerisms and today she is among the most praised of French actresses.

Mademoiselle Genevoix is appearing in the new French film, "The Wonderful Life of Joan of Arc," which purports to be an authentic reproduction of the Maid of Orleans' life, and historians and critics have acclaimed her interpretation as superb.

Pope Limits Use of New Vatican Money

Rome.—Officials of Vatican City will continue to receive their salaries in Italian money after the papal government's new money is issued, it was understood.

The papacy's own silver and gold coins will be few and their use limited.

Gold coins of 20 lire value and silver coins of 5 lire value (about $1.05 and 26 cents, respectively) are planned.

The coins will be used to purchase Vatican City stamps, to pay entrance fees to the art galleries and fees to the holy congregations, especially to the congregation of sacraments in cases of annulled marriages.

Will Dress Statue

Kovno, Lithuania.—Kovno's statue of the Greek god, Apollo, will be officially clad in a bathing suit henceforth. When a group of women protested against the statue's comparative nudity, the town council refused to remove the work of art. A compromise to dress the statue in a bathing suit finally was reached.

Dirigibles to Undergo Test

London.—The world's latest and most expensive experiment in aircraft construction will be given its first test soon when gas is blown into the bags of the R-100 and the R-101, Great Britain's new $4,000,000 airships.

Sir Samuel Heare, British air minister, recently announced in the house of commons that the two new airships would make flights to Canada and India in the fall if the trial flights were successful. Air experts of the world perked up their ears at this announcement for Great Britain's failure in these two ventures may mean death for future airship construction.

The R-100, the air ministry has decided, will go to Canada, while the R-101 will make the first long flight to India and Egypt, where arrangements already have been made for handling the ship.

But so far Sir Samuel has refused to divulge when the shed tests and first trial flights will be held. Previous delays, and subsequent questionings in parliament, have made him cautious. It was learned, however, that the bags will be filled some time in June, after which the first local flights will be made.

The construction of these two 5,000,000 cubic feet gas-filled airships is rapidly nearing completion after innumerable delays occasioned by changes in plans and the addition of many new devices which never before have been employed on giant airships. The R-101, in particular, represents several radical departures in the construction of the steel frame and also in the arrangement of the interior.

As the R-100 is fitted with ordinary petrol engines, it was selected for the flight to America, whereas the R-101, equipped with Diesel engines, is more suited to the warm atmosphere which will be encountered on the flight to India and Egypt.

Sweeping of Jewelry Shop Floor Yields Gold

Cincinnati, Ohio.—An effort will be made to recover several hundred and probably thousands of dollars' worth of gold and other precious metals believed to have accumulated under a floor of a jewelry manufacturing firm here during the last quarter century.

The firm will move into a new location soon and officials are going to make sure they remove all their belongings, even to the tiny bits of metals in floor cracks and other inconspicuous parts of the shop.

Employees wash their hands in a sink that has no outlet and about $200 worth of precious metals is recovered this way each year. Sweepings from the floor yield about $200 each month.

Oklahoma Blind Man in Commerce Group

Edmond, Okla.—For the first time in the history of Oklahoma, and perhaps for the first time in the country, a blind man has been elected president of a chamber of commerce.

Philip C. Slack, blind since birth, was elected unanimously by the Edmond group. Coming to Edmond more than twenty-eight years ago, Slack has established one of the largest book shops in the state. He is a graduate of the Janesville (Wis.) high school for blind and the college for blind at Vinton, Iowa.

Monks Work to Divert Traffic From Monastery

Cumberland, R. I.—The strange atmosphere which pervades the Cistercian monastery will become even more pronounced with the completion of a new stretch of highway under construction here.

Without outside aid, the Trappist monks of the monastery are building a new road, three-quarters of a mile long, to divert traffic from the main highway which now runs close to their retreat.

In carrying out this novel project, the monks are following the example of Henry Ford, who had a similar road constructed to divert traffic from his Wayside inn at Sudbury, Mass.

Begs for Life Term

Minneapolis.—Raymond Askley told Judge E. A. Montgomery he had proved a failure at everything, including being a burglar, and asked for a life sentence so he would have something to eat every day. The judge agreed.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Moon Minus Atmosphere

Atmosphere may be termed a gaseous envelope made up of myriads of atoms and molecules of gases. Unless a body is sufficiently large that its gravitation holds these atoms to it, it is void of atmosphere. The earth is sufficiently large, but smaller Mars has less dense atmosphere, while the very small moon has little at all.

Renovated Statue of Queen on Exhibition

There is now to be seen at the Cairo museum in that city the statue of an ancient queen which was recovered in pieces from a quarry where it had been hurled. The lady was Queen Hatscheput and her effigy had been removed and thrown into a quarry at the instance of Thothmes III upon the queen's death in 1480 B. C. The excavations near the temple Deir-El-Bahari, at Luxor, have occupied the expedition for years. In 1927 it was confirmed that all the queen's statues in the temple had been ordered destroyed. After the mutilation or destruction the pieces were thrown by Thothmes' retainers into an abandoned quarry nearby. Finally, 35 years ago, when the temple was first cleared, all the debris from it was piled together. The expedition has been employing as many as 700 Egyptian laborers at a time in the task of retrieving the fragments of the buried statues and about 100,000 tons of rubbish have been removed. Fragments of several of these statues have been recovered and are being assembled, but the work is exceedingly tedious.

Thousands of Clocks Must Tick in Unison

The British post office can claim to have the biggest collection of clocks in the kingdom. More than 20,000 timepieces have to be kept perfectly synchronized, although thousands of these are "behind scenes" and are used only for timing junction and trunk telephone calls. Every day at 10:00 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. Greenwich time is telegraphed to chief post offices in England, Scotland, Wales and North Ireland. In point of size the second collection in the kingdom is probably that distributed among the royal palaces. There are 1,000 pieces, of which Windsor castle and Buckingham palace have most. At Sandringham all clocks have been kept half an hour fast ever since the time of King Edward. In the houses of parliament there are about 500 clocks, necessitating a great deal of winding and vigilant synchronization.

Getting the Definition

We've always wished we'd never said anything about godets, not knowing what they were, but now we learn that they are sometimes used in the hem of the jacket of a tailored suit, so we suppose it's perfectly proper to mention them in mixed company, and we haven't been so relieved since we finally learned that pull-ons are gloves.—Ohio State Journal.

A Warning

Elinor Glyn said at a Hollywood tea:

"Daring dress isn't necessarily the most becoming. A wife said to her husband one day:

"'John, what would people say if I went to the mask ball as a ballet dancer in tights?'

"'They'd probably say,' John answered, 'that I married you for your money.'"

City Council Meeting

The city council held a special meeting Tuesday evening. A big audience greeted the city fathers as they took their seats. Long before the meeting was called to order the hall was crowded to overflowing This was the time set for hearing the views of property owners interested in the opening of blind streets in Stanford Park. Several appeared at the council table, and with the assistance of City Engineer Kneese went over the situation. The property owners, through whose land the proposed streets will cut through to connect wth others, showed a good spirit in that they all agreed to accept a fair price for the property and to aid in paying for the proposed street work to follow the opening of the streets.

Walker, the street commissioner, insisted that the work be done in order to beautify the city and bring people here. Weeden thought a thorough investigation should be made before actual move be made to start the campaign.

City Attorney Whitworth stated the work proposed could be done under any of the numerous improvement acts or by the city as a whole. The latter proposition seemed to be unpopular.

After considerable discussion pro ct con the matter was deferred until the next meeting of the board.

The compiaint made against Officer Feeley some time ago by the residents of the Chinese quarters charging him with entering their homes and ordering them to leave town, was taken up. Ellis vacated the chair, giving way to Blake, police commissioner, who took charge of the meeting for the purpose of making the investigation. In the absence of an interpreter, the hearing became farcial. The Chinese, who appeared as witnesses and who had signed the complaint, did not understand English and were unable to give intelligent testimony. The Chief of Police insisted that all witnesses be sworn. This procedure was all 'Greek' to the "Chink" he failing to know what an oath meant Lee Chong and Joe Sam, in broken English and coached by Miss Sadie Fry, who appeared for the Chinese, declared that Officer Feeley and Chief Furman had visited their abode during the afternoon and evening of March 4 wthout a warrant and acted rudely towards them. Ong King, a resident of Menlo Park for thirty-two years and a cook by occupation, claimed that Feeley had entered his home on March 4, ordering him to leave town.

The chief of police insisted on asking the witnesses if they were ever arrested for gambling. This brought Miss Fry to her feet with a vehement objection, declaring the proceedings were farcial and demandng that a fair trail be given the Celestials The objections were sustained by Blake and the trial proceeded.

Five Chinese were examined but little evidence was brought out owing to the lack of an interpreter. Chief of police demanded that the charge be dismissed against Feeley. On motion of Walker, seconded by Ellis the charges were dismissed and Feeley exonerated, Dale and Weeden voting no on the motion.

As a parting shot Miss Fry declared that if any of the police department ever entered the homes of the Chinese again without a warrant the city would be sued for damages in the sum of $10,000.

During the proceedings F. J. Furnival, a local merchant, essayed to enter the hall. He was arrested by the chief, who said Furnival was disturbing the peace and interferring with the meeting, while Furnival alleges that he was not and in this he is backed up by some of the by-standers. The merchant was taken to Redwood Cty and gave a bond to Judge McAuliffe for his release.

The council adjourned to June 25.

Local S. P. Man Gets Letter On Rail Competition

Unnecessary rail extension in Northern California is challenged as uneconomic and wasteful and likely to impose a burden on the public in a resolution unanimously adopted by the Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors, which had decided to intervene before the Interstate Commerce Commission against the proposed duplicating rail service of Great Northern-Western Pacific.

Word of this action was received here yesterday by L. R. Dains, agent of Southern Pacific Company.

The Siskiyou supervisors maintain that since Southern Pacific's two lines running north and south in northern California afford ample transportation to that area that another line would merely divert traffic from existing lines without conferring any benefit on the shipping or traveling public.

The chamber of commerce of Ogden, Utah, also has just gone on record as being oposed to the proposed rail construction of Great Northern-Western Pacific between Klamath Falls and Keddie as an unnecessary venture which may add a burden to commerce that the public must pay.

Some of the civic bodies that have joined in opposition to the duplicating rail extension are Dunsmuir chamber of commerce, St. Helena chamber of commerce, Richmond chamber of commerce and citycouncil, Calistoga chamber of commerce, Santa Barbara chamber of commerce, San Pablo chamber of commerce, Fernley, Nevada, Produce Growers Association, Alhambra Business Men's Association, Seal Beach chamber of commerce, Ukiah chamber of commerce, Santa Rosa chamber of commerce, Riverside chamber of commerce, Alturas chamber of commerce, Great Oakland Improvement Club, Winters Exchange Club, Fernley, Nevada, Service Club, the Southern Wyoming Coal Operators Association, Ogden Livestock Exchange, Retail Merchants Association of Ogden, Board of Commissioners, of Ogden, Utah, Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, Orange Community Chamber of Commerce, Brea Chamber of Comerce, Moorpark Chamber of Commerce, San Clemente Chamber of Commerce, Temple City Chamber of Commerce, Arcadia Chamber of Commerce, El Centro Chamber of Commerce, Whittier Chamber of Commerce, Imperial Chamber of Commerce, Associated Jobbers and Manufacturers of Los Angeles, Colton Chamber of Commerce, Glendora Chamber of Commerce, Baldwin Park Chamber of Commerce, West San Fernando Associated Chambers of Commerce, Salida Community Welfare Association, Palm Springs Chamber of Commerce, Palmdale Chamber of Commerce, and the Modoc County Development Board.
